

In 1940, a child born into the average American household had a 92 percent chance of making more money than his or her parents.

1950 average: 79%

